

MOKENA MAY HAVE TO FINISH WPA PROJECT

The wastefulness of WPA projects and the very unsatisfactory manner in which these projects are being handled was brought out at the Mokena village board meeting Tuesday night. A year ago Mokena received federal aid in the extension of its water system and the water mains were also to be extended to the south side of the village. The village furnished the pipe which has been lying along the streets where mains were to be laid since last year, but nothing further was heard from WPA about the matter until lately when the village engineer learned that the federal funds for this part of the project had been exhausted and the job could not be finished. The water main extension project also called for laying of water mains along Wolf road inside the village limits. The WPA now advises that money is available for this part of the project and the village has been asked to take the pipe from the south side and use them for the Wolf road project, but the village board has decided to leave the pipe where they are and will lay the mains on the south side at the expense of the village.

Mokena has found WPA projects very unsatisfactory. In the first place too much time is killed on the jobs and many jobs are begun but never finished.

Receives Awards At Texas Fair

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Adam Bodenschatz of Lemont, were pleased to hear that she received several awards at the San Antonio Texas Centennial.

Mokena, Tinley, Frankfort, New Lenox Bands To Play In Concert

Five bands representing four villages namely, Tinley Park, Mokena, Frankfort and New Lenox, under the direction of R. B. Wight, will play separately and also in a massed band concert to be held in the Tinley Park school auditorium on next Wednesday evening, January 13th commencing at 8 p. m.

The Tinley Park school band was organized in September and is making its first public appearance. The band has a personnel of thirty grade school players, all being beginners last September. The program will show the gradual development of this group from the beginning and will also show the system used in class instruction.

The program will open with a concert by the fifty piece Frankfort band playing the overture to "Panara, a group of novelty numbers, such as "London Bridge Is Falling Down", in modern rythem, "Coming 'Round the Mountain", featuring different sections of the band, also a selection of American melodies and German numbers. In this band many players are now members of the famous Joliet High School and orchestra, both of these organizations being national champions.

Next on the program the advanced band from New Lenox will join with Frankfort in playing the overture to the opera Martha followed by some marches. Following this the Tinley Park band will play followed by a massed band of Tinley, the new band of Mokena of thirty-five players and the beginners twenty in number of New Lenox. These bands will demonstrate how a fine group of new players can perform in a single unit.

This concert is for the benefit of the Tinley band and a well balanced program is in store.

This is the first big local musical treat in the new year and the public is most cordially invited to attend and enjoy it. Tickets are now on sale.

Farm Supply Co., Cuts Big Melon

In keeping with these times of Bonuses and Dividends, the Board of Directors of the Lake-Cook Farm Supply Company, at a recent Board meeting, declared the biggest dividend ever declared by that Company. With a volume near the half million dollar mark and earnings of over $41,000, the Board declared dividends that will put $32,000 in the pockets of farmer stockholders of Lake and Cook Counties.

The Lake-Cook Farm Supply Company was organized in Grayslake in 1928, and has enjoyed nine years of almost phenomenal growth, with warehouses and bulk plants at Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Roselle, Arlington Heights, Tinley Park and Blue Island. At present they are contemplating the erection of a new warehouse and bulk plant at Des Plaines. Thirty-two employees carry on this large business of serving the farmer members.

The dividends declared by the Board will be paid to the stockholders at a huge annual meeting to be held at the Masonic Temple at Des Plaines, Illinois, Thursday, January 21, 1937.

SUGGEST FILTER TO REMOVE IRON FROM WATER

Mokena village water contains a great deal of iron and as a result rust stains show on utensils, kitchen sinks, toilet bowls, etc. At the village board meeting held Tuesday night Mr. Schaeffer of Mokena appeared before the board and made a complaint regarding this situation and suggested that a filtration plant be installed at the village pumping station to do away with the iron in the water. He suggested that the cost of such a plant would be about $1,500 and that the village water users could pay for this by each user donating a certain amount toward the cost, instead of having the village pay it out of the water fund. Nothing definite was done about the matter. Water users are to be interviewed in the near future as to their stand on this proposition.

Secretary of State Alarmed At Auto Death Toll Increase

Deeply concerned over early statistics which indicate a toll of dead and injured, unparalleled in the history of the automobile industry, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes today urged Illinois motorists, for their own sake and that of others, to drive safely during 1937.

"Only by accepting individually the burden of the responsibility for the safety of ourselves and others, can we again make our streets and highways reasonably safe," said Mr. Hughes.

According to the early reports more than 37,400 persons met death in the United States last year in approximately a million motor vehicle accidents.

"It is with a feeling akin to horror that we contemplate the new year's toll of tragedies due to automobile accidents," said Secretary Hughes. "The problem is one with which we can no longer afford to temporize."

"Public officials charged with traffic law enforcement must meet the issue squarely, and those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they assume when they take the wheel, if we are to materially reduce traffic accidents."

"When these factors are given satisfactory consideration, we will have reached the first approach to a fundamental solution of highway safety."

Secretary Hughes pointed out that pedestrians also have a large part to play in reducing accidents.

Traffic consciousness on their part, says Mr. Hughes, will do much to reduce pedestrian fatalities.

Pneumonia Scores Second Time In Tinley Park

Pneumonia claimed a second life in Tinley Park last Sunday when the four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hartwig succumbed to the disease.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. Albert Buddenhagen, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church of Tinley Park officiating.

Wind Blows Tree Down On Lincoln Way

During a high wind last Sunday morning a large dead tree was blown down near the Warning farm east of the Mokena road and fell across the Lincoln Highway blocking all traffic for the time being. Autoists finally broke away the top branches of the tree so that one way traffic was opened.

George Sangmeister of Frankfort who has charge of the state truck for this section with the aid of George Marti of Mokena cut the tree up with a big saw and thus removed it in log sections from the highway. Luckily no cars were passing by at the time the tree crashed across the highway.

New Meat Market Will Open In Tinley Park This Saturday

Tinley Park will have a new meat market to be located in the Hollstein Building on Oak Park avenue. The new market will open Saturday of this week and will be located in the same quarters lately occupied by the Smith Quality Market adjoining the Royal Blue Store.

The management of the new market is offering a cash prize of $5 for the best name submitted for the new market. Entries will be accepted up to and including Saturday, January 30th. Suggestions for a name for the new market are to be submitted to the Tinley Park Times and can be left at the Tinley Park Drug Store, local business office of the Tinley Park Times. Watch for further particulars next week.

BREVITIES

Mrs. Rachael Bennet, eighty-two, resident of Sidell for 70 years, is dead.

Scott Hull, sixty-two, well known Dixon business man, died while visiting friends in Sterling.

Miss Connie Freedlund, a junior from Chicago, has been chosen queen to represent Augustana college in the Illinois-Iowa college invitational basketball tournament to be held in Rock Island, Jan. 8-9.

Olin Peden, twenty-five, Glenarm, was killed near Hartsburg when a truck he was driving overturned as he swerved to avoid being hit by another car which came out on state route 121 from a side road.

The resettlement administration's report on its activities in Illinois up to November 1 listed $1,762,089 in loans to 3,557 farm families, grants of $322,632 to 6,004 farm families and purchases of 23,503 acres of substandard land.

Sister Mary Regis Donahoe, eighty-one, member of the Visitation community at the Villa de Chantalin, Rock Island, since its establishment in 1899, died in the villa. She formerly was head of the English department at the school.

Edward L. Du Bois, seventy-two years old died at his home in Libertyville. He had lived in the village for 64 years and was a former member of the village board of trustees and the board of education.

Clarence Tomlinson, seventy, was tied up in his farm home east of Pulaski by three or four men who were seeking a large sum of money they thought was hidden in the house. Finding only a few dollars, the men took two rifles and two shotguns as they fled.

James F. Boyd, one hundred years old, one of the oldest Masons in the United States, died at his home in Joliet. Boyd, whose birthday July 22, was a feature of the Will county centennial, had lived in Joliet seventy-nine years. He was a former Will county supervisor and retired as a farm implement sales man twenty-five years ago.

For the second consecutive year the forty city employees of Geneva received Christmas bonuses ranging from 1 to 2 per cent of their year's pay. City officials also announced that 25 per cent rebates on December electric light bills would be given to some 1,300 citizens who purchase their electricity through the city.

A drive against "chiseling" merchants by the state department of finance has uncovered millions of dollars in unpaid state sales taxes, it was announced in Springfield. The "chiseling" has been particularly prevalent among tavern owners, it was learned. The drive was ordered by Sam L. Nudelman, Belleville, acting director of the department.

The federal grand jury in Chicago indicted fourteen persons accused of operating two large stills near Joliet on charges of violating the internal revenue laws. It said to be the largest group indictment on such a charge since prohibition days. Most of the evidence brought before the jury by federal agents was collected in a year long program of wire tapping.

Motorists were urged in a state highway engineers' report to Gov. Henry Horner to slow down to fifty miles an hour in night driving in the interests of safe driving and to reduce accidents. The engineers said they reached the conclusion after a series of tests to determine the distance at which various objects could be seen by automobile drivers under various kinds of headlight illumination.

Local relief officials throughout Illinois were notified by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission that an enrollment of young men in the civilian conservation corps will be made early in January. The enrollment will be made from unmarried boys and young men between seventeen and twenty-eight years of age whose need has been certified to the commission by local relief officials. The commission in turn will refer the applicants to army officials through whom the actual enrollment will be made.

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield ruled that the Illinois Central railroad is not liable for the loss of $21,974 which was stolen in 1921 while being shipped by registered mail from a Chicago bank to the Franklin Coal company at Royalton. The Aetna Insurance company sued the railroad in the Cook county Circuit court, and won a judgment which was affirmed by the Appellate court. This judgment was reversed by the Supreme court which ruled that one who chooses to send a valuable parcel by mail "becomes bound by the government's selection of agents and contracts with the forwarding companies."

Moline State Trust and Savings bank announced a payment of 10 per cent on the deferred certificates of the bank now held by depositors will be made January 15. It will amount to $207,586. Deposits have increased nearly 100 per cent since the bank reopened.

Washington
DigestNational Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—The Capital city has returned to normalcy. It is not the normalcy of January, 1935, or the years immediately preceding, but the normalcy of the year in which that quadrennial spectacle, an inauguration of a President, takes place. But Washington's normalcy is a condition that comes in cycles and it matters not how the wheel of life turns, those who are resident here get used to it and of necessity they take the condition in regular stride.

Back to

That sounds like Washington residents are blasé. And they are to a greater extent than residents of most cities. But paradoxical as it may seem, native Washingtonians and a certain percentage of those in the political field become so excited that they lose all sense of proportion on occasions such as an inauguration ceremony. The answer seems to be personal vanity—a desire to be "out in front" and to "show off" by having important places in parades and having their names and pictures in the newspapers.

But there is another side of this Washington normalcy. It is the side of the political powers who have little concern about the District of Columbia as such or what goes on therein unless those affairs strengthen the position these political powers hold among their constituencies "back home."

Hence, under the dome of the great Capitol building, there is all the activity of a bee hive. The old timers among the legislators have learned to proceed with caution and to develop their plans slowly, but the newer members of the house and senate are all agog, each one with his own pet idea for saving the nation; each one with a varying conviction about his own importance as a member of the national legislature, and each one determined not to overlook a single opportunity to show the folks back home that their representative or their senator has become a national figure.

Then through the corridors, the halls, committee rooms and offices there are the hurrying feet of newspaper correspondents, representatives of this interest or that, messengers and lowly members of the Capitol's vast staff of carpenters, cleaners and chore workers. They are, of course, important only as they make the Capitol habitable but they are an inescapable part of the picture—of Washington normalcy.

"Downtown" Washington has another picture. In the executive departments, in the bureaus, commissions and agencies of which scores have come into being under the Roosevelt New Deal, there is intense activity. Policy makers of these various units make plans, study, confer, propose or reject ideas for consideration of the new congress and the administration heads. These fellows are less concerned about the folks back home than are the legislators. Their chief concern usually is perpetuation of their jobs, development of their units or agencies into places of such importance that the country cannot do without them. There is a personal interest hardly less to be condemned than that of the self-seeking politician.

All Is

On top of all of these—the governmental activities of the government—there is still another normalcy in Washington. It is the social side. Of course, all Washington society springs and has its being in White House reflection. From the great mansion at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, there radiates every kind and condition of a social engagement. Outstanding among these obviously after the inauguration of a President is the Chief Executive's dinner to his cabinet. A reception to the Supreme Court of the United States and the other members of the judiciary follows. In rapid order come receptions to the legislators, to the army, navy and marine corps, to the foreign diplomats resident here and all of these are interspersed with smaller official dinners in the great state dining room at the White House.

In various sections of the city and in the hotels, dinners, receptions, cocktail parties continue in ceaseless chains. And if the brutal statement must be made, the truth is that nearly every one of them has a purpose above and beyond personal enjoyment, but the selfish interest is quite frequently so deeply concealed that those who are being "cultivated" may not realize what the objective is.

Gloss and Glamour

These random observations have been presented chiefly to show the gloss and the glamor that is self-imposed upon the hundreds of persons who combine to make up what we know as government. They play, as they have a right to play,

They must have diversion. Frequently this diversion serves useful purposes for the country as a whole because through personal contact those charged with responsibility many times gain information, understanding, of the problems with which they must deal in official positions.

And so it is that, as Washington returns to normalcy, we have a congress—the seventy-fifth—beginning its labors with perhaps a confusion as great as any in recent years with the exception of that which opened the first term of the Roosevelt administration. In my own mind, I doubt that the confusion of 1933 was as great as it is now because in that period of emergency, the important wheelhorses of government were concerned with only one thing, namely, quick enactment of policies that would help in bringing order out of the economic chaos in which we found ourselves.

The current congress gets down to work, however, in a different atmosphere. Agencies of the government time after time have held lately that the emergency is over; that policies considered now must be considered on a permanent basis and that if there is to be a new order, the make-up, the consistency, of that new order must be examined with the idea of fitting the various pieces into a compact and workable whole.

It is in this atmosphere, therefore, and under the circumstances of an overwhelming landslide of votes by which President Roosevelt was returned to office that the administration must take stock of what has happened in the last four years and must analyze the prospects as far as the future discloses them.

Time to

Probably the most serious long range problem confronting the country involves the relationship of government and business. For weeks, I have sought information and views of individuals concerning the real crux of this problem because it has so many different phases. From all of this research I am inclined to the opinion that the fundamental question to be answered is that peril that faces the portion of our people that have passed the age of forty-five.

It may seem like a broad statement to pin down the relationship of government to business to that one question of what to do with workers above forty-five but I verily believe that is the crux.

It will have to be treated briefly in these columns but nevertheless it seems to me that all of the growing howl about "social security" centers on this one point. It centers there because politicians and starry-eyed wishers have made so much noise about the government looking after the aged that a natural reaction has taken place in industry and, in consequence, there is a growing disinclination among employers to take on workers past forty-five.

Under the whip of competition and in an effort to offset the costs of the present social security program, manufacturers everywhere have been looking for methods by which they can substitute machines for human workers. Where that was impossible, they have turned to younger workers so that the increase in protection per worker, according to the best calculations, is not all due to the use of machinery. Greater efficiency has come from the employment of people able to go at high speed throughout the working period.

This development has been in progress in the manufacturing industries for at least 20 years but it has received its greatest impetus in the last three or four years since it became evident that the federal government was going to force upon commerce and industry protection for the older employees.

Federal Reserve board figures reveal that 16 years ago, nearly 70 per cent of all gainfully employed workers were in the basic industries while 30 per cent were employed in the professions and service groups mentioned above. Five years ago, 60 per cent were in the basic industries and 40 per cent in the professions and service industries while at the beginning of 1936, about 57 per cent were in basic industries and the professions and service groups embraced about 43 per cent.

From this it will be seen that an enormous transformation has been taking place in the type of work that people do. It represents, of course, changes in our national life, practices and traditions but who is there to say when and where this trend will halt. Equally, what government authority can be able to say that social security laws enacted now will be applicable and workable by the time the Roosevelt administration ends?

"Magnificent Failure"

IN ALL the history of missionary work in America, there is no more remarkable record than that of David Zeisberger. For 63 years he labored among the Indians and during that time he traveled many thousands of danger-filled miles through the wilderness on foot and by canoe. He built no less than 13 Indian towns as centers of Christianity in a heathen land and he lived to see all but one of them wiped out of existence. He had failed but truly his was a "magnificent failure."

Zeisberger was born in Moravia in 1721 and in 1740 came to Georgia where his church was organizing a mission among the Creeks. Next he was sent to Pennsylvania where he aided Count Zinzendorf in building the Moravian towns of Nazareth and Bethlehem.

Beginning his work among the Delawares at Shamokin, Pa., he was adopted by the Munsey tribe of that nation. Then he went to New York where the Six Nations made him a sachem and keeper of their records, an unusual honor for a white man. When the French and Indian war began he was compelled to return to Bethlehem because both French and English were suspicious that his charges were partisans.

After Pontiac's conspiracy had been crushed in 1763 the Moravian led his flock to Wyalusing, Pa., and established two more missions on the Allegheny and the Beaver. Then the call for service beyond the Ohio came to him and in 1772 he founded Schoenbrunn ("Beautiful Spring"), the first white settlement in the future Buckeye state. Next the town of Gnadenhuetten was established and an era of peace began.

But trouble was brewing for him. Although Zeisberger restrained the Delawares from taking part in the Revolutionary conflict, he soon found that he was under suspicion by both the British and the Americans. The British stirred up the Wyandots to break up the mission at Schoenbrunn and its teachers were tried as American spies. Finally in 1782 came the crowning blow, when a party of brutal Americans committed the hideous massacre of 96 Christian Indians at Gnadenhuetten. The broken-hearted Zeisberger started with the remnants of his flock on a journey which took them first to Michigan, then back to Ohio and finally to Canada where he founded Fairfield on the Thames river.

In 1798 the Moravian Indians and their leader came back to the Tuscarawas river in Ohio where Zeisberger founded his last town—Goshen. There his "long life of amazing fortitude, faith and patience" came to an end in 1803.

Real Estate Promoter

THOUGH you may regard real estate promoters as products of modern times, the fact is one of the greatest "put over his deal" early in the history of the republic. His name was Joel Barlow and he was a lawyer, a diplomat and a poet, which may account for the fact that once "his siren voice persuaded a group of French emigrants to seek a Garden of Eden in Ohio."

Back in 1787 two groups of land speculators, known as the Ohio Associates and the Scioto Associates, secured the right from congress to purchase land in the Northwest territory with the almost worthless Continental currency with which it had paid off soldiers of the Revolution. Then the Scioto Associates sent Barlow to France to dispose of these lands. They had nothing but an option on the lands but that didn't stop Barlow.

He sold a tract of 3,000,000 acres to a French Scioto company which in turn retailed farms to peasants and artisans who were willing to emigrate to America. In the spring of 1790 some 600 of them arrived in Alexandria, Va. William Duer, head of the Scioto Associates, was filled with dismay for there were neither agents to meet them nor lands ready for them.

Foreseeing the trouble that was ahead when hundreds more land-hungry Frenchmen arrived, Duer hastily arranged to take over lands of the Ohio Associates, who owed him money. For this debt he got nearly 200,000 acres on the Ohio river opposite the mouth of the Great Kanawha.

There he brought the Frenchmen and in October, 1790, the town of Gallipolis was founded. Rufus Putnam was engaged to build their huts for them but Duer soon found that it would be impossible to fulfill all the glowing promises which Barlow had made—to provide good homes and profitable occupation for the skilled artisans among them. By 1792 Duer had gone bankrupt, land titles were still in a bad tangle and the settlement of Gallipolis began to dwindle. For years thereafter congress had to listen to many a tale of woe from the victims before their claims were settled.

A Trio for the Younger Set

THREE more intriguing numbers than these would be hard to imagine—even in this day of rampant fashion and scintillating style! It's a trio that the younger set in The Sewing Circle will be enthusiastic about too, for first consideration is given them in—

Pattern 1936—This excellently styled jumper dress is one of the tot of six and the lass of fourteen will sing long and loud over. It is a guaranteed delight for both mother and daughter because it's the simplest thing to sew and the most intriguing frock a child ever had. The puff of the sleeves and the flare of the skirt place a pretty accent on youth. Available for sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/4 yards of 35 inch material for the jumper and 1 1/4 yards for the blouse.

Pattern 1202—There's subtle loveliness about this new dress for all occasions. It makes a grand thing of simplicity—a brilliant success of the new silhouette. Buttons, bold shiny ones, add classic chic to the back. And in the matter of sleeves there's an opportunity to choose for oneself. Sheer wool, challis, taffeta or silk crepe will be a likely material for this dress. Designed for sizes: 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 2 3/4 yards of 54 inch fabric. With long sleeves 2 7/8 yards.

Pattern 1936—This is the season for smocks, although not the 'hunting season,' thanks to today's new model, pictured here. Imagine the fun of having a smock that reflects one's own taste in its every detail—yes, even to the size and color of the scarf and buttons. Designed in sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 34 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. The bow requires 1 1/2 yards of ribbon.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall and Winter Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

New Engine for Fighting Airplane Fires

Here is a photograph of the chemical fire engine that was tested at Le Bourget airdrome, near Paris, recently, to determine its efficacy in fighting fires of gasoline or oil. An old plane was set ablaze with a large reservoir of gasoline and the new device put it out in 30 seconds. The engine consists of a fast car fitted with a specially adapted hose which throws artificial snow and chemical froth on the fire.

THIS LAND OF OURS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

NO man is master in this land of ours. Since ev'ry citizen retains his pow'rs. The humblest is the highest, since the low Selects the high, and tells him thus and so. Who takes an office does not take a crown, Becomes the servant of the lower down, Hires out his services for certain pay, A hundred million others to obey. They are the government, he but the tool, The instrument by which the people rule. What is this capitol upon the hill? It is the workshop of the people's will. Then where dwells pow'r? Not under gilded domes— Beneath the roofs of twenty million homes. There reign what kings there are, who delegate To men less busy matters of the state. And they, these public servants, rise and fall As they their limitations shall recall. Theirs not to order, wear a diadem, Theirs but to order as we order them. How he shall toil and where he shall abide Are matters for the freeman to decide. Not always right the humble man may be, But better to be wrong and still be free.

KNOW THYSELF

by Dr. George D. Greer

WHY DOES A PERSON CARRY A RABBIT'S FOOT TO BRING GOOD LUCK?

ALL magic of this sort, as practiced by civilized people, is indicative of certain mental trends. Dr. Ernest Groves, in his helpful book, "Understanding Yourself," says that any attempt at bringing luck by magic "is the consequence of the human recoil from unpleasant facts. It announces that the individual faces situations against which his whole being protests, something to which he finds it almost impossible to be reconciled. It is a confession that some obstacle to happiness or safety has arisen and the individual lacks the resources to cope with it." People do not resort to magic for luck when they feel themselves able to do a thing. It is insecurity and inferiority feelings that make people trust in charms and carry them.

Test for the Nerves

Dr. Thomas H. Stagers, mechanic - therapist of Cleveland, Ohio, thinks he has something here as he piles match upon match upon match all upon the mouth of a beer bottle. The something is a test of steady nerves. Working most of two days, the doctor succeeded in erecting a tower of 3,585 matches before someone with a heavy tread caused the edifice to collapse. This tower upon which the doctor is shown working, is his second attempt. He has promised to keep at it until the first tower is left far in the shade.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Instead of sewing ribbon belt to a buckle to be worn on wash dresses, use a snap fastener. Buckle may then be easily removed when washing.

To remove marks on paint which have been made with matches, rub them with lemon, then with whiting and finally wash with soap and water.

Dates filled with cheese or nuts make a good accompaniment to serve on fruit salads.

A clove of garlic rubbed around the salad bowl will season the salad, but will not give it too strong a flavor.

Crumbled dried bacon is delicious when added to egg omelet. Left-over bacon can be used this way.

If mayonnaise curdles while it is being made, put another yolk of egg into an empty basin, add the curdled sauce gradually to it, stirring all the time, and it will become right again.

Don't whisper in a sick person's presence, and don't look gloomy after the doctor's visit. Imagination runs riot when one is ill and sick people miss nothing.

When potatoes have been over-boiled and gone to broth, lay a strong cloth in the colander and empty the contents of the saucepan into it. Gather up the cloth as if for a pudding, and squeeze tightly until every drop of moisture is out, and you will find that you have a light, floury ball.

Mix ingredients for ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water. It improves them.

WHERE THE RATS WERE.

IF BILLY MINK didn't know where the rats who had left the big barn had gone to, the farmer who owned the big barn and the henhouse and the woodpile knew. Yes, indeed, the farmer and his family knew just where those rats were. They were in the farmhouse!

You see, the wise gray old leader of the rats knew the safest place for them was in that farmhouse. In the first place it was big and that meant that there was plenty of room with ever and ever so many hiding places. There was food there, plenty of it, to be stolen. They could be very comfortable in that farmhouse. More than this, they would be safe from Billy Mink.

That gray old leader knew that Billy Mink would hesitate a long time about actually entering the house because of his fear of man. He didn't believe that Billy would dream of looking for them in that house, especially if he couldn't track them over there. This Billy couldn't do, as the wise old leader very well knew, because it had been snowing when the rats left the big barn and the falling snow had covered their tracks and destroyed the scent.

So, while Billy Mink was looking under the woodpile and in the henhouse for those rats they were making themselves very much at home in the farmhouse. They could climb about between the walls and go where they pleased. The first thing to do was to make homes for the babies. It didn't take some of those rats long to find the way to the attic. Now the attic was filled with trunks and boxes and papers and all sorts of odds and ends. It was just such a place as rats love. Right away the old mother rat began to tear up papers and make rags of clothing that hung in the attic. Rags and paper make the finest kind of nest for a rat. These nests they hid in dark places behind boxes and trunks.

And while they were busy with this, the father rats set out to search for food. It didn't take them long to find the pantry and gnaw holes through the wall into it. And they were not quiet about their work, either. The farmer and the farmer's wife knew what was going on. They could hear the scamper of little feet across the attic floor and faint squeaks between the walls. They could hear the gnawing.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the farm-

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

SEVERAL GOOD DISHES.

WHEN fresh coconuts are in the market, try using the grated nut freely in many dishes. A salad of fruit sprinkled with two or three tablespoonfuls of grated coconut is most attractive and appetizing.

Benares Salad.

Chop rather coarsely two cupfuls of tart apples, add two cupfuls of grated coconut, one-half cupful of celery finely cut, two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, one tablespoonful each of chopped parsley and red pepper. Serve with french dressing. Sometime serve head lettuce with:

Blackstone Dressing.

Take four tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise dressing, the same of whipped cream, two tablespoonfuls of chili sauce, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a tablespoonful of finely minced onion, adding at the last a tablespoonful of cream roquefort cheese.

Cassole.

This is a famous French dish which is both historical and appetizing. Soak overnight one quart of lima beans, in the morning bring to a boil, add salt, more water and cook until tender. Place in a cassole two cupfuls of cooked chicken or duck, add the beans, an onion, one-half cupful of strained tomato, one quart of chicken broth and a teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet. Bake one hour, uncover and sprinkle with a little minced parsley and serve.

Hot Potato Salad.

Boil half a dozen potatoes with the skins on. Peel and slice while hot. Fry thin slices of bacon and cut into small bits, using half a cupful.

Here's Simple Way to Ease a Cold

Two Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving
Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a Glass of Water

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat fever and the pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will act as a medicinal gargle to provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain. It is really marvelous; for it acts like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's—not for "aspirin" alone.

HOW OFTEN
CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

'Everyman's Fair,' Says Whalen

NEW YORK, (Special).—Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, announces that official support and foreign participation in the New York World's Fair of 1939 are reaching new "highs," and that there is an already obvious opportunity for every state to display advantageously its accomplishments and future possibilities and to join in making it one hundred percent "Everyman's Fair."

Boston Terrier Dog

ORLAND PARK

The New Year party and dance held by the Orland Park Post of the American Legion at the Goodings Grove dance hall on New Year's eve was very well attended. All refreshments and drink supplies were sold out.

George E. Gee, cashier of the Orland State Bank has been ill with the flu this week.

The Orland Park village board will hold their first meeting in the New Year next Monday night.

Frank Moore who has been ill has recovered and is back on his filling station job again.

The Ladies Guild of the Orland Park M. E. church held their annual Christmas Party in the church parlors last Thursday. A nice program was carried out. There were a number of songs by Royal Glahn on the program which were much enjoyed as also was the singing of Luther's famous "Cradle Song" by Miss Ethel Reish. Mrs. Mumford gave an interesting talk on Christmas. Refreshments consisting of fruit salad, cake and coffee were served. A gift exchange was also a feature of the party.

John Helenhouse, well known barber of Orland Park is starting the new year right with a bright and newly decorated tonsorial parlor. Painters have been busy this week painting and varnishing the place. The Orland Park Legion Post will hold their monthly meeting next Tuesday night.

The Earl Reish family entertained a company of friends at a New Year Eve party. The New Year was ushered in with the discharge of a bunch of fireworks left over from last fourth of July.

The George Brier family moved to Chicago Tuesday.

Dr. Craig and family moved into their new home in Lemont last Thursday. Dr. Craig will continue to maintain an office in Orland Park.

George E. Gee, has moved into the residence vacated by the Brier family on 143rd street.

The Adult Bible Class of the M. E. church will meet next Wednesday January 13 at 8 p. m. in Creer's hall. Everyone is invited.

The Ladies Guild of the M. E. church will sponsor a supper in the church basement the evening of Jan. 21. Watch for further details.

The next stated meeting of the Royal Neighbors will be January 28 in Creer's hall. The newly elected officers will be installed and also initiation of candidate transferred from the Juveniles. This is to correct an error in last week's notice of date of meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
Among the high school students who were away from home during the holidays were: Betty Parks, who went to Madison, Wisconsin; Ruth Arnold who went to Decatur, Ill.; Phyllis Brickley to Highland Park and Laura Wagner to Chicago.

Jack Schussler gave an interesting talk before the school describing his trip to Texas. He told about King's Ranch, which is such a well-guarded place, that people who trespass are never seen to return. Jack described the oil wells near Houston and said that the price of everything is very high in Houston on account of the new fields.

Laura Wagner reports that she saw at least eight moving picture shows while she was visiting in the city.

Robert Miller was ill with a severe cold for several days.

Norman Yunker is making a relief map of "Treasure Island" in connection with his reading of that classic in English I.

General Science class is now studying the question, "How Are Our Homes Provided With An Adequate Water Supply?"

Women's Clubs To

The following program will be given at the district meeting of the Third Congressional meeting of the Illinois Federation of Women's club on January 18, in the Morgan Park Baptist church, 11024 S. Bell Avenue, with the Morgan Park Women's club as hostess:

10:30 a. m. The address of welcome will be given by the Morgan Park Club president, Mrs. R. R. Robertsch, and will be responded to by the district president, Mrs. A. H. Swett. Following the pledging of allegiance to the flag, Dr. Ralph K. Packard, president elect of the Illinois Medical Society will speak on the subject, "Exploitation of Health."

At 11:15, Mr. Wm. P. Wilkerson, president of the Indian Council Fire, will speak on "Problems of Indian Youth" Indian songs will be sung and Indian Arts and Crafts will be exhibited by Whirling Thunder.

At 11:45 a representative from the Seeing Eye Institute will speak on "How Dogs Are Taught to Be Seeing Eyes for the Blind."

Luncheon will be at 12:30. The afternoon meeting will come to order at 1:30 with community singing. 1:45 Miss Ruby K. Badger, Supt., of the Park Ridge School for Girls, will speak of her work.

Mrs. Arthur R.R. Williams, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will speak at 2 o'clock.

This program is under the auspices of the departments of Indian Welfare, Public Health, Public Welfare departments.

All club members desiring to attend should make their reservation with the dean of their club by Jan. 15.

Members are requested to bring to this meeting magazines for Oak Forest and books for outlying clubs.

New York World's Fair Site From 9,000 Feet Up

NEW YORK, (Special).—Photography and ingenuity combine to show about how the New York Fair will appear in 1939 to visitors arriving from the west in planes flying at an altitude of one and three-quarters miles. Cameraman made this "shot" from a plane over the New Jersey meadows. Shown in the foreground is the shipping along the Hudson—Manhattan with its towers grouped about the Empire State building (center) which houses present headquarters of the Fair—and in the middle distance the 1,216½ acre site of the 1939 international exposition. To the right lies Brooklyn and, beyond, the hinterland of Long Island. At the extreme left, spanning the East river, is the new Triborough bridge over which many of the 50,000,000 visitors expected at the Fair will motor to the convenient parking lots. A photograph of the table model of the Fair has been superimposed on the negative of the air view to show the grid of the central exhibit zone, the boat basin being constructed on Flushing Bay and the lagoons that will feature the exposition's amusement zone.

"Living an Immortal Life", will be the sermon Sunday morning. We have just passed through a joyful holiday season and we are now writing on a new page in the book in which is recorded the work of the church. May the work and upbuilding influence of our Tinley Park Methodist church be increased many-fold in the year to come. This will be possible only through the loyal support of its members and friends. May this year's resolution be to truly support our church with our presence, our prayers, our gifts and our service.

Visit the church with the friendly spirit!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 3.

The Golden Text was, "God is the Lord, which hath shewed us light" (Psalms 118:27).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever" (1 Timothy 1:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Principle and its idea is one, and this one is God, omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent Being, and His reflection is man and the universe. Omni is adopted from the Latin adjective signifying all. Hence God combines all-power or potency, all-science or true knowledge, all-presence" (p. 465).

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Alfred Zechlin

The Amite Sewing Club met at the home of Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaugen Tuesday evening, January 5th.

Installation of officers was held by the Royal Neighbors at their meeting on Thursday evening, January 7th.

Mrs. Lou Henschen of Joliet, cousin of Mrs. Edw. Vollrath spent the past week end at the Vollrath home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Meyers of Los Angeles, California spent the holidays with their relatives, Conrad Sippel and Mr. and Mrs. Chris Fink.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lucas of Oak Park and Mrs. Will Schieferstein spent Sunday evening at the Albert Baumgartner and Alfred Zechlin homes.

Henry Krusemark and daughter Lucille of Minneapolis, Minn., and the latter's friend from Chicago, visited at the home of the former's uncle, Mr. Louis Krusemark Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stauffenberg and Miss Leona Stauffenberg of Manteno, Ill., spent the holidays on a motor trip to Florida.

Edward Stauffenberg of Aberdeen, S. D., visited at the John Bankow and John Hansen homes last week.

Mrs. Frank Folkers was taken seriously ill at her home Monday morning.

Glenn Folkers who has been ill with the flu the past week, has returned to his duties as mail carrier on the Mokena route.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo G. Petersen are the proud parents of a baby boy born to them at Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey Monday, January 4th. The infant will be named Paul Leo.

The Frankfort Musical Ensemble will hold a pinochle party at the Frankfort Public School Friday evening of this week at 8 p. m.

Many a youngster who would not think of stealing a ride on the till-board of a truck will hitch his sled to a car in order to enjoy a thrilling free ride. That's one of the winter hazards drivers must think about during the next month or two.

It is a great temptation to be big hearted and let the kids have their fun, but think what it means when you suddenly decide to turn a corner and the sled on which the youngsters are riding sideswipes another car going in the opposite direction. Serious injury or death may be the result.

If you really love children you will discourage this practice. Make it a habit to look back now and then to see that you haven't picked up a couple of joy riders.

Children are care-free, ambitious and daring. You must protect them.

Women's Clubs Resume Meetings

We hear H. B. and G. B. have quite a crush on each other.

B. W. Claims she certainly enjoyed the ride home from the party about 1 a. m. with a certain party, so much so, that she changed her mind about going home, and went back to the party with him. You wouldn't fall for him now, would you B?

Imagine I. V. surprise to wake up early New Year's morning and find it was 1937 instead of 1938. Must be something to be able to live a whole year in one nite.

Everybody wants to know what happened to E. L. and F. E. at the party the other nite. Why the disappearing act girls. Walk home? L. R. and R. C. must be getting it bad—last week they were out together five nites straight.

Imagine how popular E. N. was at the party Thursday nite, with five wives.

What was it Earl, that made you so popular with the women Thursday nite? And who's the gal you took home about 1 o'clock? Just how long did it take you to get to New Lenox and back?

Looks as tho R. F. and R. S. are getting it bad. Is it steady now, kids?

R. M. certainly appeared to be enjoying himself at the party Thursday nite. He wants another party now.

F. R. wants to know where everybody was Thursday nite? It seems as tho he didn't see many.

Where were E. M. and D. R. about two minutes before twelve New Year's Eve? Two people have a bet made as to where they were. Anyone knowing for sure might claim half the bet.

M. J. has a new boy friend now. Who is this 'Duffy' person anyhow, M?

COOKIES

"The children run from near and far To dip into the cookie jar."

THAT'S one of the immemorial prerogatives of childhood. So prevalent is it, in fact, that a vast cookie baking industry has been built up to keep all the cookie jars in the country comfortably full so that children can exercise that prerogative.

But, after all, it's fun to surprise them. They all know the contents of the innumerable cartons of delicious cookies that save modern housewives so much preparation and baking. But when they plunge their eager hands into a cookie jar—a real old-fashioned cookie jar—which they know contains cookies made at home, the pleasure of uncertainty as to the nature of their treat is added to their anticipation of something delicious.

Apricots Inside!

Almond Apricot Squares: Cream one-half cup shortening and one-half cup sugar, add one well-beaten egg, and then one-fourth cup apricot purée. Sift together two cups pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoon soda and a few grains salt, and add. Stir in two-thirds cup finely chopped blanched almonds. Chill well, roll very thin and cut in squares. Place on a greased sheet. Will not spread. Bake at 400 degrees, a hot oven, for eight or nine minutes. Makes five or six dozen cookies.

Dried Apricot and Nut Cookies: Put one cup dried apricots through a food chopper. Then combine them with one and a half cups condensed milk, one cup canned moist coconut and one cup chopped nuts, drop by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for from twelve to fifteen minutes. Makes about thirty cookies.

Molasses and Coconut

Molasses or Ginger Cookies: Boil one cup molasses a minute, add one cup sugar, one cup shortening, two teaspoons ginger, two teaspoons cinnamon and two well-beaten eggs. Add four teaspoons soda mixed with one-fourth cup vinegar. Add about five cups of flour to make a stiff dough. Roll thin. Cut as desired. Bake in a moderate—375 degree—oven for about twelve minutes. Use also for making gingerbread men. May sprinkle with sugar before baking if desired.

Cocoanut Buns: Cream one third cup shortening and three fourths cup sugar, add one well beaten egg and then one-third cup canned raspberries, mashed but not sieved. Sift together one and a half cups pastry flour, one and a half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon soda and one fourth teaspoon salt, and add. Add one cup bran and one cup canned moist coconut, and chill. Drop by small spoonfuls on greased pan, about two inches apart. Bake in a moderate—375 degree—oven for about twelve minutes. Makes three and a half dozen cookies.*

AMERICAN MUST FOREGO WAR PROFITS

American business, industry and agriculture must forego profits from foreign conflicts if America's position of neutrality is to be maintained. The quick profits of war boom trade with belligerents give immense fortunes to a few men but they produce disaster for the nation as a whole.

America wants no part in foreign wars.

American business must assist government in keeping the country out of war by foregoing the gold which later would blight our nation. President Roosevelt has said that it was prospect of war profits that made farmers in the West plow up prairie land that never should have been plowed, but should have been left for grazing cattle. Today, Mr. Roosevelt pointed out, the country as a whole is reaping the harvest of those war profits in the rust storms that devastated those war-plowed areas.

"This country must choose between war profits and peace for America. If war gamblers want to make huge profits out of war on foreign soil, let them ship their merchandise—munitions and other war materials—in their own vessels and assume the risk of transport. The 1935 neutrality act authorized the President to proclaim that a state of war existed anywhere in the world and to forbid the export of arms and implements of war to the belligerents. This act also gave the President the authority to keep foreign submarines out of our ports and territorial waters; and to prohibit our own people traveling on belligerent vessels except at their own risk."

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is proposing a "Peace-for-America" program which provides that the profit be taken out of war and war preparations.

This program also includes provision for the government control of munitions, strict neutrality with no foreign entanglements and a more effective national defense, he said.

Libyans White

The Libyans of North Africa are distinctively a white race with dark curly hair.

Scotland's Latitude

Scotland lies in the same latitude as Labrador, Hudson bay, South Alaska and Siberia—lands of frozen soil, icebergs and dreary wastes, of intense cold. Though its northern bounds are but a few miles from the Arctic circle, it bears no resemblance to the ice-bound countries.

The People Who Are Afraid

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Over much of the Old World today we are witnessing a swift and disturbing rise to power by self-appointed leaders of the People Who Are Afraid.

Afraid of what? Afraid of freedom. Afraid of themselves and their own capacities. Afraid of machines and their influence. Afraid of assuming responsibility for their own thoughts, their own efforts, their own lives. Afraid of the future.

That's why they are willing to turn to forms of government which offer to relieve them of that responsibility. That's why they are eager to scrap their own identities for unsupported promises of security offered by Fascism or Communism or the various other isms which now tear Europe.

To the average American worker, proud of a national heritage of courage and self-reliance, this surrender to transient fears may seem a strange and remote thing. But the prophets of defeatism, both at home and abroad, are not convinced of the American's attitude. Hopefully they continue to seek converts here.

Their way should be a hard one. The American tradition remains one of freedom and achievement.

The American people are not afraid of liberty, or they could never have written a Declaration of Independence and a Bill of Rights. They are not distrustful of their capacities, or they could never have conquered a continent. They are not fearful of machines, or they could never have produced a Fulton or an Edison. They do not dread the future, or they couldn't continue the bold and ambitious plans for national progress so typical of the American spirit today.

Europe and its cynics may continue to chant their swan songs of despair. But of America we still say with the poet:

"I do not know beneath what sky
Nor on what seas shall be thy fate;
I only know it shall be high,
I only know it shall be great."

In such an outlook there is no room for fear.

1937 Farm Plan

Calls For Corn

Acreage Limits

Will County farmers co-operating in the 1937 agricultural conservation program will be assigned a corn acreage limit conforming to good conservation practice, according to Farm Adviser Leonard W. Braham.

This corn acreage limit will be in addition to the soil-depleting base. The sum of individual corn acreage limits for farms in Will county will fall within the corn acreage limit which is to be established for the county.

The county limit for Illinois counties will be established by the state committee and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, according to information received by Farm Adviser Braham from the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Limits for individual Will county farms are to be established by the county agricultural conservation committee and will represent for the farm the highest acreage which may be planted to corn without deduction from any payments that would otherwise be made.

In assigning corn acreage limits, the county committee will consider productivity, topography and the type of soil on each farm in the county. In addition they will establish the average relationship between land which has been planted to corn and the crop land for the community.

On farms for which a corn acreage limit is established the class 1, or diversion and conversion payments will be increased 5 per cent.

"This corn acreage limit is designed to prevent increases which might defeat the effort to conserve the soil. Furthermore, with normal yields any increased acreage might result in surpluses which would greatly reduce prices, Mr. Braham said.

Heavy demands made by corn on soil fertility and the fact that corn leaves the soil exposed to erosion for much of the season are added reasons given for the inclusion of corn acreage limits in the 1937 program. It is anticipated that the limit for Will county will be somewhat smaller than the total acreage planted to corn in 1936.

MOKENA

Mrs. Emil Krapp who has been in poor health for some time was removed to the German Deaconess hospital in Chicago last Saturday. We hope for her speedy recovery and return to our village.

The Mokena Royal Neighbor Camp met in regular session Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Bertha Groth. The newly elected officers were installed. After the business meeting, cards were played and refreshments, which had a resemblance of Christmas, were served. Eighteen members were present.

Miss Margaret Krusemark returned Saturday evening to Mokena after spending the holidays with her parents in Truman, Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and daughters spent New Year's Day in the home of Mr. Semmler's cousin, Geo. Heim and family, in Blue Island.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Ohlborn entertained in their home in Chicago Wednesday evening, the latter's mother, Mrs. Bertha Wallace, her sisters, Miss Janette, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Olson and family of Mokena and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carlquist of New Lenox.

Mrs. Robert Bechstein entertained the Eno 500 club in her home Wednesday afternoon.

Ruth Lowe spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Schneider in Chicago.

Jean Schevin and Virginia Neberker spent last Saturday with Marjorie and Corinne Marti.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lowe spent last Thursday and Friday with friends in Chicago.

The regular meeting of the Mokena Garden Club was held in the home of Mrs. Anton Benson Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was called to order and each member responded to roll call by naming an "Ever-green" as follows: Mrs. Benson, The Juniper; Mrs. Balaz, Douglas Fir; Mrs. A. Braun, White Pine; Mrs. H. Mall, Balsam; Mrs. H. Schewe, Fir; Mrs. F. Rauch, Mile of Christmas Trees in California; Mrs. W. Yunker, Dwarf Mountain Pine; Mrs. O. Bartels, Australian Pine.

Many interesting subjects were discussed in regard to the care of "Ever Greens, as to Winter Protection; Mulching; Winter Injuries and Remedies. As a special treat at the close of the meeting, refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Everett Cooper. The subject for discussion at that time will be "Forcing."

Mrs. Henry Stellwagen who has been ill for several weeks is slowly improving.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will meet in the home of Mrs. Ona McGovney next Thursday afternoon, January 14 at two o'clock.

SCHOOL NEWS

Primary room—Miss Doig's room had a doll party Tuesday. All the girls brought their dolls and paraded thru the rooms to show them. Dolls of all sorts, including Shirley Temple, Dionne Quintuplets and Dr-Dee dolls. Even a doll 30 years old, used by Eileen Nelson's mother.

Intermediate room—Many children are absent in this room because of illness.

Everyone is happy to be back to school again after their vacation. This room will have a doll day some time this year.

SPORTS

The High school basketball team will play the Beecher high school team Friday January 8 in Mokena Gym at 7:30 p. m. We would like to see you out and support the team.

There will be a tournament of the grade and high school teams which will be held at Crete Wednesday January 13.

FEATURES

The Resolutions of the Mokena faculty are as follows: Mr. Dunn: To make this year a banner year for the Mokena students.

Miss Leak resolves to have a better disposition. Mrs. Cappel—to have a bigger and better year. Mrs. Ferguson: Try to help others and make them happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bechstein spent the holidays with friends and relatives in Chicago.

Miss Dorothy Miller who has been in poor health for sometime and of late has been staying with her niece Alma in Chicago, is expected to return to her home here this week. She is somewhat improved.

Rev. Theodore Haelele who has been ill with the flu, is improving nicely.

The New Year was ushered in rather quietly here. At midnight midnight the church bells rang. No special celebration was observed. Glenn Folkers has returned to his duties as mail carrier following a siege of the flu.

Club Women Will Make Tour of Chicago Post Office

The United States Post Office, 433 W. Van Buren street, Chicago, will be the scene of a lecture and tour, beginning at 1:30 p. m. Friday January 15, in room 1124. Mrs. E. E. Byerrum, Civil Service Chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, has arranged this tour for district and club chairmen of the department of Civil Service, or anyone interested is invited to attend. A member of the staff of the Seventh United States Civil Service District, will address the assembly, which will be followed by a tour to other parts of the Post Office.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY VIRGINIA FRANCIS
Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

When the neighboring slopes are covered with crisp, white snow which crunches under the feet and from which the slanting rays of a winter sun send diamond lights into every direction—it's skiing time. The invigorating nip in the air calls out gayly colored ski suits, sweat-

First off, you can cook a complete man-sized meal in the heat-controlled, moisture-controlled electric oven while you are out of doors careening down snowy hillsides! There's a little clock-like gadget called the chef's brain which times the baking of this meal so that when ers, mittens, caps, and their owners. Winter sports are in full swing!

Sportsmen with the wisdom of experience know that all this glory of play on a brisk, perfect winter day has its sequel—hungry-as-bear appetites which demand a satisfying warm meal. One consisting of roast ribs of beef, baked acorn squash, carrots en casserole, and apple Betty, for instance, would fill the bill—and Bill—satisfactorily. But all too often that kind of meal means that someone has had to stay in to keep the home fires burning. And very often a trip to Hunters' Ski Slide results in the gathering of a crowd, carelessly but enthusiastically invited to "drop in" for dinner—or eats—or something afterward!

Chef and Hostess, Too

Now that is a problem, isn't it! How to share all the fun and be "army" chef and hostess, too! Nothing short of a maid or a miracle could be the solution to such a problem, and the maid is out of reach financially to most young homemakers. So—it's up to the miracle! And that miracle, always ready to perform, is the new automatic electric range.

the hungry crowd comes home your oven will produce a glorious piping-hot meal, done to a turn.

Roast Ribs of Beef

Mrs. Sportsman prepares the roast ribs of beef for baking and places the roast in a shallow open pan. Around the roast she arranges acorn squash (cut in half and seasoned). Then into one covered casserole go some carrots, together with seasonings and a little butter, and into another casserole go the makings of an apple Betty. Then she places the meal in the oven, and instructs the chef's brain to release the measured electric heat into the insulated oven about 2 hours before she expects to return (the exact time is determined by the size of the roast and the degree of doneness desired). She sets the temperature control to 400° and turns the oven switch for baking. And when the gay crowd hails from the chilly, appetite-raising out-of-doors she will fall into the role of well-poised hostess by simply opening the door of her electric oven and serenely announcing "dinner is served!"

AGRICULTURAL AMERICA TO HONOR CENTENNIAL OF JOHN DEERE'S SELF-SCOURING STEEL PLOW

June Ohrstrom examines what is left of one of the first three plows made by John Deere who in 1837 gave to the world the self-scouring steel plow. The 100th anniversary of this historic event will be celebrated in 1937. The inset photograph is of John Deere.

MOLINE, ILL.—National honors will be accorded by agricultural America throughout 1937 to John Deere in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of his steel plow which ushered in a new era of progress for the prairie states and agriculture in general.

It was in a little blacksmith shop in Grand Detour, Illinois, in 1837 that Deere fashioned and gave to the world the self-scouring steel plow. This achievement, hailed as one of the most important contributions to modern agriculture, will be honored in thousands of small and large communities with "John Deere Centennial Celebration" days, with community leaders and farmers participating.

Deere was born in Vermont in 1804 and came to Grand Detour in 1837, where he established a blacksmith shop. He heard the farmers complain that the sticky soil, while rich in fertility, gummed their primitive plows and made plowing virtually impossible.

Deere applied himself to the problem, and one day, while in a sawmill, he noticed a broken steel saw blade. As he contemplated its smooth, gleaming surface, an idea took shape in his mind.

Obtaining the blade, the 33-year old blacksmith labored carefully and long and finally produced the history-making plow. In the presence almost of the entire community and settlers from far and near Deere hitched a horse to his gleaming plow and began a triumphal march up and down the test field.

This was the only plow produced that year; eight were hammered out the next year, and business grew until in 1842, when the demand became too great for his slender resources and he took into partnership Major Leonard Andrus. In 1847 Deere decided he wanted better transportation and sources of supply, so he relinquished his partnership, moved to Moline and established the John Deere plow works.

Today the John Deere organization still maintains headquarters at Moline but from the original small plant has grown an internationally famous farm implement house whose products, covering the entire gamut of farm machinery, are in use all over America and in every part of the world.

CHAPTER I

There were two reasons why the terrible and, in many ways, incredible Garden murder case—which took place in the early spring following the spectacular Casino murder case—was so designated. In the first place, the scene of this tragedy was the penthouse home of Professor Ephraim Garden, the great experimental chemist of Stuyvesant university; and secondly, the exact situs criminis was the beautiful private roof-garden over the apartment itself.

It was both a peculiar and implausible affair, and one so cleverly planned that only by the merest accident—or perhaps, I should say a fortuitous intervention—was it discovered at all.

The Garden murder case involved a curious and anomalous mixture of passion, avarice, ambition and horse-racing. There was an admixture of hate, also; but this potent and blinding element was, I imagine, an understandable outgrowth of the other factors.

The beginning of the case came on the night of April 13. It was one of those mild evenings that we often experience in early spring following a spell of harsh dampness, when all the remaining traces of winter finally capitulate to the inevitable seasonal changes. There was a mellow softness in the air, a sudden perfume from the burgeoning life of nature—the kind of atmosphere that makes one lackadaisical, and wistful and, at the same time, stimulates one's imagination.

I mention this seemingly irrelevant fact because I have good reason to believe these meteorological conditions had much to do with the startling events that were imminent that night and which were to break forth, in all their horror, before another 24 hours had passed.

And I believe that the season, with all its subtle innuendoes, was the real explanation of the change that came over Vance himself during his investigation of the crime. Up to that time I had never considered Vance a man of any deep personal emotion, except in so far as children and animals and his intimate masculine friendships were concerned. He had always impressed me as a man so highly mentalized, so cynical and impersonal in his attitude toward life, that an irrational human weakness like romance would be alien to his nature. But in the course of his deft inquiry into the murders in Professor Garden's penthouse, I saw, for the first time, another and softer side of his character. Vance was never a happy man in the conventional sense; but after the Garden murder case there were evidences of an even deeper loneliness in his sensitive nature.

As I have said, the case opened—so far as Vance was concerned with it—on the night of April 13. John F-X. Markham, then district attorney of New York county, had dined with Vance at his apartment in East Thirty-eighth street. The dinner had been excellent—as all of Vance's dinners were—and at ten o'clock the three of us were sitting in the comfortable library.

Vance and Markham had been discussing crime waves in a desultory manner. There had been a mild disagreement, Vance discounting the theory that crime waves are calculable, and holding that crime is entirely personal and therefore incompatible with generalizations or laws.

It was in the midst of this discussion that Currie, Vance's old English butler and majordomo, appeared at the library door. I noticed that he seemed nervous and ill at ease as he waited for Vance to finish speaking; and I think Vance, too, sensed something unusual in the man's attitude, for he stopped speaking rather abruptly and turned.

"What is it, Currie? Have you seen a ghost, are there burglars in the house?"

"I have just had a telephone call, sir," the old man answered, endeavoring to restrain the excitement in his voice.

"Not bad news from abroad?" Vance asked sympathetically.

"Oh, no, sir; it wasn't anything for me. There was a gentleman on the phone—"

Vance lifted his eyebrows and smiled faintly.

"A gentleman, Currie?"

"He spoke like a gentleman, sir. He was certainly no ordinary person. He had a cultured voice, sir, and—"

"Since your instinct has gone so far," Vance interrupted, "perhaps you can tell me the gentleman's age?"

"I should say he was middle-aged or perhaps a little beyond," Currie ventured. "His voice sounded mature and dignified and judicial."

"Excellent!" Vance crushed out his cigarette. "And what was the object of this dignified, middle-aged gentleman's call? Did he ask to speak to me or give you his name?"

A worried look came into Currie's eyes as he shook his head.

"No, sir. That's the strange part of it. He said he did not wish to speak to you personally, and he would not tell me his name. But he asked me to give you a message. He was very precise about it and made me write it down word for word and then repeat it. And the moment I had done so he hung up the receiver." Currie stepped forward. "Here's the message, sir."

Vance took it and nodded a dismissal. Then he adjusted his monocle and held the slip of paper under the light of the table lamp. Markham and I both watched him closely, for the incident was unusual, to say the least. After a hasty reading of the paper he gazed off into space, and a clouded look came into his eyes. He read the message again, with more care, and sank back into his chair.

Markham Snorted, "That May Make Sense to You."

"My word!" he murmured. "Most extraordinary. It's quite intelligible, however, don't you know. But I'm dashed if I can see the connection . . ."

Markham was annoyed. "Is it a secret?" he asked testily. "Or are you merely in one of your Delphic oracle moods?"

Vance glanced toward him critically.

"Forgive me, Markham. My mind automatically went off on a train of thought. Sorry—really." He held the paper again under the light. "This is the message that Currie so meticulously took down: 'There is a most disturbing psychological tension of Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment, which resists diagnosis. Read up on radioactive sodium. See Book XI of the Aeneid, line 875, Equanimity is essential.' . . . Curious—eh, what?"

"It sounds a little crazy to me," Markham grunted. "Are you troubled much with cranks?"

"Oh, this is no crank," Vance assured him. "It's puzzling, I admit; but it's quite lucid."

Markham sniffed skeptically.

"What, in the name of Heaven, have a professor and sodium and the Aeneid to do with one another?"

Vance was frowning as he reached into the humidor for one of his beloved cigarettes with a deliberation which indicated a mental tension. Slowly he lighted the cigarette. After a deep inhalation he answered.

"Ephraim Garden, of whom you surely must have heard from time to time, is one of the best-known men in chemical research in this country. Just now, I believe, he's professor of chemistry at Stuyvesant university—that could be verified in Who's Who. But it doesn't matter. His latest researches have been directed along the lines of radioactive sodium. An amazing discovery, Markham. Made by Doctor Ernest O. Lawrence, of the University of California, and two of his colleagues there, Doctors Henderson and McMillan. This new radioactive sodium has opened up new fields of research in cancer therapy—indeed, it may prove some day to be the long-sought-for cure for cancer. The new gamma radiation of this sodium is more penetrating than any ever before obtained. On the other hand, radium and radioactive substances can be very dangerous if diffused into the normal tissues of the body and through the blood stream.

"That is all very fascinating," Markham commented, sarcastically. "But what has it to do with you, or with trouble in the Garden home? And what could it possibly have to do with the Aeneid? They didn't have radioactive sodium in the time of Aeneas."

"Markham, old dear, I'm no Chaldean. I haven't the foggiest notion wherein the situation concerns either me or Aeneas, except that I happen to know the Garden family slightly. But I've a vague feeling about that particular book of the Aeneid. As I recall, it contains one of the greatest descriptions of a battle in all ancient literature. But let's see . . ."

Vance rose quickly and went to the section of his book-shelves devoted to the classics, and, after a few moments' search, took down a small red volume and began to rifle the pages. He ran his eye swiftly down a page near the end of the volume and after a minute's perusal came back to his chair with the book, nodding his head comprehensively, as if in answer to some question he had inwardly asked himself.

"The passage referred to, Markham," he said after a moment, "is not exactly what I had in mind. But it may be even more significant. It's the famous onomatopoeic Quad-rupedumque putrem cursu quatit ungula campum—meanin', more or less literally: 'And in their galloping course the horsehoof shakes the crumbling plain.'"

Markham took the cigar from his mouth and looked at Vance with undisguised annoyance.

"You're merely working up a mystery. You'll be telling me next that the Trojans had something to do with this professor of chemistry and his radioactive sodium."

"No, oh, no," Vance was in an unusually serious mood. "Not the Trojans. But the galloping horses perhaps."

Markham snorted. "That may make sense to you."

"Not altogether," returned Vance, critically contemplating the end of his cigarette. "There is, nevertheless, the vague outline of a pattern here. You see, young Floyd Garden, the professor's only offspring, and his cousin a puny chap named Woode Swift—he's quite an intimate member of the Garden household, I believe—are addicted to the ponies. Quite a prevalent disease, by the way, Markham. They're both interested in sports in general—probably the normal reaction to their professorial and ecclesiastical forebears: young Swift's father, who has now gone to his Maker, was a D.D. of sorts. I used to see both young Johnnies at Kinkaid's Casino occasionally. But the galloping horses are their passion now. And they're the nucleus of a group of young aristocrats who spend their afternoons mainly in the futile attempt to guess which horses are going to come in first at the various tracks."

Lesson for January 10

NEW LIFE IN CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God.—John 3:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Answering a Man's Question.

JUNIOR TOPIC—the Most Important Question.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Christian Life Begins.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—New Life in Christ.

The only entrance into the Christian life is by the door of the new birth. Regeneration is the act of God whereby the divine nature is imparted to the believing sinner and he becomes the child of God. He who has not entered by this way has not entered at all. He is still dead in trespasses and sins, without God and without hope (Eph. 2:1, 12).

Men are seeking to enter the household of God by almost any other means—culture, reform, character building—and are neglecting God's way. This lesson should therefore be studied and taught with earnest prayer that this foundation truth may lay hold upon the hearts of the hearers of the Word. Let no one who is not born again attempt to teach it to others, lest the blind attempt to lead the blind, and both fall into the ditch (Luke 6:39).

The coming of Nicodemus to our Lord took place at the time when he was in Jerusalem for the Passover. Jesus had chosen six of his disciples, had been at Cana of Galilee, where he performed his first miracle, and had made a brief visit to Capernaum, after which he came to Jerusalem for the feast. In high and holy indignation he had driven the money changers out of the temple. The Pharisees who looked for the coming of the Messiah as a secular conqueror wondered at this new spiritual leader. It was probably as much on their behalf as his own that Nicodemus came to inquire of Jesus. In answering his questions Jesus reveals the necessity, the nature, and the method of regeneration—in other words, the Why, What, and How of the New Birth.

I. Why? (vv. 1-7.)

Jesus was not unduly impressed by the dignity and high station of his visitor, nor by the visitor's courteous acknowledgment of his own position as a great teacher. With decisive boldness Jesus declares that this man, a cultured and distinguished ruler of the Jews, must be born again, if he is to see the kingdom of God.

God is no respecter of persons. This "doctor of divinity" must be born again, just as was the illiterate fisherman. D. L. Moody once said that he was thankful it was to such a man as Nicodemus that Jesus presented the necessity of the new birth—or men would have said that only the down-and-outer needed to be saved.

Two reasons are given by our Lord for the "must" of verse 7: (1) The Kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom, and cannot be entered by way of our human nature; and (2) "That which is born of the flesh is flesh" and is radically and essentially bad. To learn why the flesh is bad read Jeremiah 13:23, and Galatians 5:19-21.

II. What? (vv. 8-13.)

The new birth is a divine mystery, not fathomable by human reason. Those who insist that all spiritual truth be put through the little norm of their intelligence will never understand it or receive its blessing. The striking illustration of the life-giving and energizing wind used by our Lord is most illuminating. Wind is unseen, but the results of its movement are evident.

III. How? (vv. 14-17.)

Just as there was healing and life in a look at the uplifted serpent (Num. 21:8), so there is life for a look at the Crucified One. Faith receives God's perfect provision for sin.

Verse 16 may well be regarded as the greatest sentence in the greatest Book in the world. It presents the whole plan of salvation—its source, its ground, its recipients, its condition, and its result.

This glorious salvation is for all men—"whosoever"—but some reject it. Notice that God does not condemn them. Their own evil works and desires condemn them (vv. 17-20). God in his grace is ready and willing to save, but men love "darkness rather than light"; for their works are evil.

God's Mercy

O God, the whole world is as a drop of morning dew. But Thou hast mercy upon all . . . For Thou lovest all things that are, and abhorrest nothing that Thou hast made . . . But Thou sparest all, for they are Thine, O Lord, Thou lover of souls.

If You're Told to "Alkalize"

Try This Remarkable "Phillips" Way
Thousands are Adopting

On every side today people are being urged to alkalize their stomach. And thus ease symptoms of "acid indigestion," nausea and stomach upset.

To gain quick alkalization, just do this: Take two teaspoons of PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA 30 minutes after eating. OR—take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, which have the same antacid effect.

Relief comes almost at once—usually in a few minutes. Nausea, "gas"—fullness after eating and "acid indigestion" pains leave. You feel like a new person.

Try this way. You'll be surprised at results. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Delightful to take and easy to carry with you. Only 25¢ a box at all drug stores.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

"I Had a Friend"
"What is the secret of your life?" asked Mrs. Browning of Charles Kingsley: "tell me, that I may make mine beautiful, too." He replied: "I had a friend."

CHECK THAT COUGH BEFORE IT GETS WORSE

Check it before it gets you down. Check it before others, maybe the children, catch it. Check it with FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR. This double-acting compound gives quick relief and speeds recovery. Soothes raw, irritated tissues; quickly allays tickling, hacking. Spoonful on retiring makes for a cough-free sleep. No habit-forming, stomach-upsetting drugs. Ideal for children, too. Don't let that cough due to a cold hang on! For quick relief and speeded recovery insist on FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay
Heating Expert

Getting Fire to Burn Briskly to Produce Quick Heat on Cold Mornings

WHAT a joy and comfort it is to get your home heated quickly on cold mornings! And how easily it can be done! Shake the grates gently. When a red glow appears in the ashpit, stop shaking. Next, open the ashpit damper and close the check damper until the fire burns briskly. Should fresh fuel be necessary, feed it on the fire in a thin layer. Give it time to burn well and heat the house, then add a full charge of coal. When the gases have burned off, reset the dampers for normal burning.

This same rule applies should the fire get very low and almost burn itself out at any time. Be careful not to smother it with too much coal. Open the ashpit damper and close the check damper. When the fire again is burning brightly, shake the grates gently until the first red glow appears in the ashpit, add a full charge of fuel, allow the gases to burn off, reverse the dampers—close the ashpit damper and open the check damper. That's the way to save fuel and cut down trips to the cellar.

THREE-QUARTER WIFE?

THERE are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport.
Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness three weeks in a month and a hell cat the rest of the time. No matter how your husband aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

CARD OF THANKS
 With sincerity and gratitude, we offer our humble thanks and everlasting appreciation to our many friends, neighbors and relatives for the great comfort and help given to us in our hour of need.

We thank Rev. Buddenhagen for his kindly assistance and express our appreciation for the many floral offerings. Thanks also to the friends who have donated the use of their cars.

The sympathy and friendship extended to us has fortified our spirit to bear the burden of the loss of our dear daughter, Carol.

A precious one from us has gone,
 A voice we loved is stilled.
 A place is vacant in our hearts
 Which never can be filled.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Hartwig.

CARD OF THANKS
 From the depths of our hearts, we wish to extend our gratitude and express our appreciation to the many friends and neighbors who have stood at our side in the darkest hour of bereavement in the loss of our dear son, Howard.

We thank Rev. Buddenhagen and the church for their kindly assistance. With deep affection do we appreciate the sympathy and last expression of friendship by the many little school chums of our beloved son.

We give thanks for the floral offerings and donors of cars.

The comfort to a grief stricken heart and the courage to repel the veil of despair which is obtained only thru the sympathetic understanding of friends received a fullness of appreciation far beyond expression of words. With all our hearts, we thank you.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henke and family.

RESULT OF OVERLOADING

Kansas City, Mo.—Laden with an overloaded tonnage of steel, here is what happened to the highway of an outer-belt road leading into Kansas City. The right rear wheel cannot be seen as it is completely submerged in the concrete slab.

So many highway accidents have occurred in this state and the need for data which may be used as a basis for determining the special road costs incurred by trucks is so great that state highway departments are now conducting surveys in several states to determine a fair charge against the trucks for the use of highways. While thousands of motor trucks daily bring about destruction of highways shown in the above illustration, it is pointed out that pleasure cars and light farm and delivery trucks stand an unjustifiable share of costs of highway upkeep.
